

Denis Barnham – some other paintings

Here are five other splendid examples of work by the very talented former Head of Art, who taught at Epsom from 1947 to 1971

Storm and Lighthouse, Guerneville
(1948)

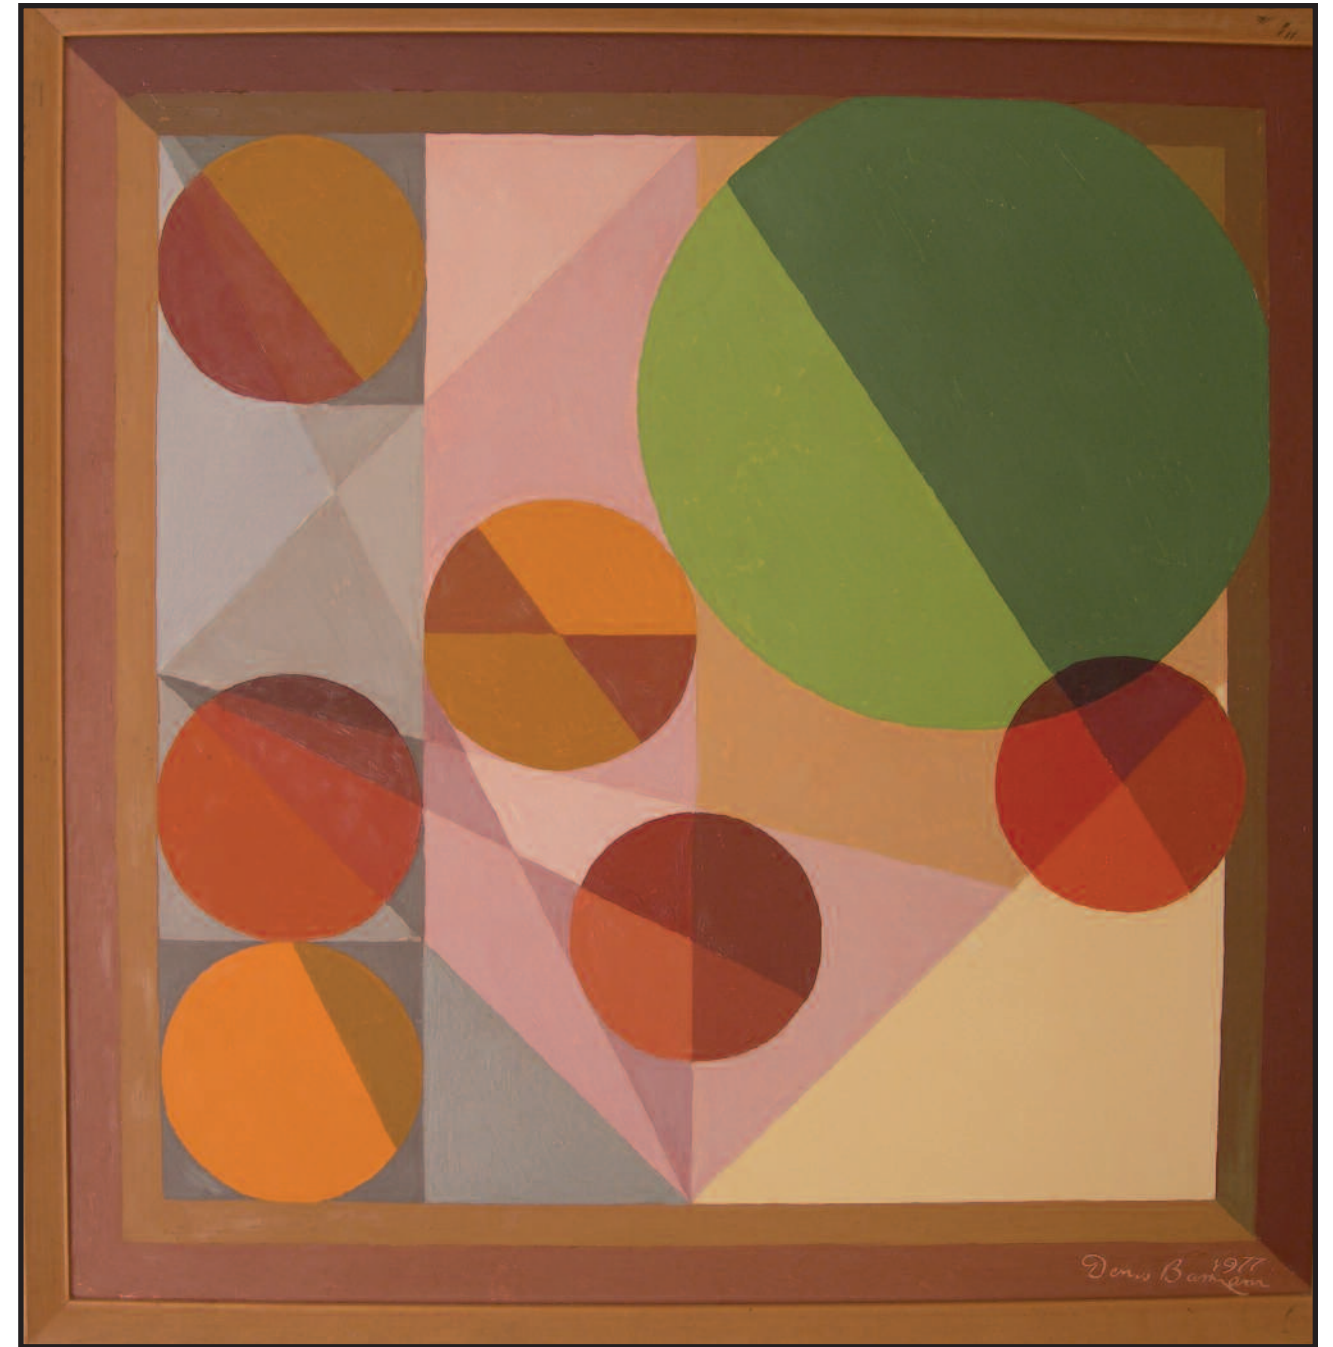

La Ronde
(Circa 1956)

The Dominant Queen
(1974)

In June 1942, Denis drew this small pen sketch of Spifire flying ace, George 'Screwball' Beurling, hailed as the most successful Canadian fighter pilot of the Second World War after he shot down 27 enemy planes in only 14 days on Malta. By the end of the war this total had climbed to more than 30. Denis and George overlapped for a short while when Beurling arrived on the island that June and was posted to Takali aerodrome.

The Satellites
(1977)
